Young People at Risk Action Plan

The Young People at Risk Strategy will be delivered through a combination of new programmes and initiatives; and transformation of the existing system and services. The new Young People at Risk Executive will oversee and coordinate delivery of programmes involving a wide range of partner organisations. It will also drive the long term system change needed to embed a preventative, integrated system of support for young people from 0-25, at all levels of risk.

This Action Plan will be a live document, which is updated regularly as fresh ideas emerge, as partnerships build, and our understanding of what works deepens. It sets out headline actions and resourcing commitments, alongside some of the key areas for focus and development over the next 1-3 years. It should be noted that as a partnership, we have secured a significant amount of external funding to support young people. However, this is time-limited and it is crucial that the funding drives transformation to the long term strategic approach set out in the Strategy. Across all our delivery, we will take a common approach, based on the following principles:

- A strengths-based and trauma-informed approach, for young people at all levels of risk
- Engagement of young people and their families in the design of support packages
- Intervening as soon as issues are identified and sustaining support for as long as it is needed
- Addressing problems holistically, taking a joined-up, whole family approach
- Making best use of moments of opportunity to engage young people and their families
- Frequent and honest engagement with our communities and our partners
- Long-term sustainability of services, building in resilience and planning for the future
