Access to the Local Government Pension Scheme

Since the 11th of May, Councillors in England can now access The Local Government Pension Scheme (LGPS) which provides pension benefits for councillors and mayors (referred to as 'elected members') in England who are under age 75.

Councillors are eligible to join if they receive an allowance or salary from a district council, county council, unitary council, combined authority, combined county authority, London borough council, fire and rescue authority or the Council of the Isles of Scilly. Members of the London Assembly, the Court of Common Council of the City of London and the Mayor of London can also join the Scheme, with the agreement of their authority.

Councillors will need to complete and return a joining form which is available from the Pensions Team and this needs to be completed and signed with a wet signature and cannot be typed. Once the Pension team receives the form, they will start deducting pension contributions from Councillor's allowance. Councillors can check their payslips to make sure the correct contributions are being taken.

The Council's Pensions Team will set up Councillors a pension record and send through an official notification of membership of the Scheme.

To note that if a councillor receives an allowance or salary from more than one authority and want pension benefits from each role, they must complete a separate joining form for each authority.

When opting to join the Scheme, councillors will join from the beginning of the next pay period. Councillors should check their payslip to make sure pension contributions are being collected from allowances.

To note that councillors can pay into the LGPS even if they already contribute to another pension scheme. Councillors are allowed to pay into as many pension schemes as they like. In each tax year, councillors can pay up to 100% of their UK taxable earnings into any number of pension arrangements of their choice and still be eligible for tax relief, subject to the annual allowance.

As an elected member, Councillors pay a percentage of their pensionable pay into the LGPS. The Councillor contribution rate is based on how much they are paid. It's currently between 5.5% and 12.5%. Councillors can find out how much the Scheme costs using the contributions calculator on www.lgpsmember.org.

Councillors pensionable pay is the total of all basic allowance, special responsibility allowance, salary and other relevant allowances paid by their authority. Generally, this means that all pay from their authority is pensionable except travel and subsistence allowances. The Council pay the balance of the cost of providing councillor LGPS benefits.

As a member of the LGPS, councillors receive tax relief on the contributions that they pay. Councillors also have the option to exchange part of their pension for tax-free cash when they take it.

Councillors can boost their pension by paying more contributions, which councillors would get tax relief on. Councillors can also pay half their normal contributions in return for half of their normal pension. This is known as the 50/50 section of the Scheme. It is designed to help members stay in the LGPS when times are financially tough.

A councillor's family enjoys financial security, with immediate life cover and a pension for their spouse, civil partner or eligible cohabiting partner and eligible children if councillors die in service. If councillors become seriously ill and councillors have met the two-year qualifying period, councillors could receive their pension straight away.

Once councillors have met the two-year qualifying period, councillors can retire from office and take their pension from age 55. Benefits paid before state pension age will normally be paid at a reduced rate. When councillors retire councillors can look forward to a pension payable for life that increases each year in line with the cost of living.

The Government has announced that the earliest age councillors can take their pension will increase to age 57 from April 2028. The LGPS regulations have not yet been amended to reflect this change.

1/49th of your pensionable pay is put into councillor's pension account every year. The balance in their pension account is adjusted in line with the cost of living every April. When councillors retire, the balance in your pension account is the annual pension payable for life.

If councillors wish, they can give up part of their annual pension to get a lump sum when councillors take their benefits. Councillors can take up to 25% of the value of their pension benefits as a lump sum. For every £1 of annual pension councillors give up, they will receive £12 as a lump sum. The lump sum is usually paid tax-free but there is a lifetime limit of £268,275 across all councillor UK pensions.

Councillors can transfer into the LGPS from another pension scheme or personal pension plan. However, any transfer-in of final salary benefits will not entitle councillors to final salary benefits in the LGPS, councillors will receive an equivalent amount added to their pension account instead. Councillors will generally have 12 months from joining the LGPS to opt to transfer their previous pension.

Councillors can also combine their previous councillor or elected membership of the LGPS with your new elected membership, with some exceptions.

If councillors leave the LGPS before they retire and have at least two years' membership, their pension benefits will be deferred. This means they'll be held for councillors until councillors are ready to retire, which councillors can do from age 55 onwards. The earliest age that councillors can take their pension will increase from age 55 to 57 from 6 April 2028.

If councillors leave with less than two years' membership councillors may be able to claim a return of their contributions, less tax.

All councillors can find more information on the councillors and mayors page of www.lgpsmember.org.
