NOTE: The DFE suggests that the 2012 results in English and in writing should not be viewed as a continuation from 2011. This is because of the different method of assessment used in writing in 2012. (Writing was teacher assessed and not tested)

NOTE: The 2013 KS2 assessments will no longer give a level for English. There will only be separate levels for reading and writing. There will also be a new test in spelling and grammar. There will not be a combined English and maths level. See notes below from DFE

Reporting the results of the grammar, punctuation and spelling test in 2013

Pupils in Year 6 will take the new grammar, punctuation and spelling test in May this year, as recommended by Lord Bew's independent review of Key Stage 2 testing, assessment and accountability. Pupils will receive separate test results for grammar, punctuation and spelling, reading and maths. Pupils' writing will be subject to teacher assessment judgement.

At school level, the results of each test and assessment will also be published separately and the Department will not calculate a combined overall English level. This will enable schools, parents and the wider public to make informed judgements about schools' performance based on each subject area.

The floor standard measure in 2013 will be for at least 60 per cent of pupils to attain Level 4 in reading, writing and mathematics. The new grammar, punctuation and spelling test will not be included in the calculation this year.
