Principles underpinning all our priorities

Promoting prevention, early help and intervention: Ensuring that universal services provide early advice and support to families to give children and young people the best start in life and try to prevent problems from escalating; Identifying need and supporting children, young people and families at the earliest possible stage; changing our focus to a preventative and early intervention approach, shifting ways of working and resources to support this.

Reducing inequality: Targeting additional available resources to tackle issues known to cause inequality (child poverty, unemployment and exclusion) before they cause long-term damage to children's life chances; ensuring that principles of fairness and social justice guide our priorities and actions.

Developing resilience and community participation: Drawing on strengths within our communities to enable families to find solutions to their own needs wherever possible, and support them to help themselves through problems; encouraging children to make the most of their time at school and young people to develop skills for employment, leadership and local decision making, to choose healthy lifestyles; involving families in the design of their services.

Ensuring best use of available resources: Delivering services through a highly skilled and committed workforce, using opportunities to share learning experiences; benchmarking outcomes against statistical neighbours and learning from the best; exploring opportunities to integrate services where there is a business case to do so; releasing capacity by strengthening our early help offer to prevent more costly needs escalating.
